

Note: The new forum process is necessary due to heightened security concerns with our web host. Spammers and other miscreants can too easily damage the system if access is not tightened -hence the new process- Sorry.

(For Apscme 3357 Forum postings: Note that this is a private forum for Apscme 3357 members and an initial invitation must be issued in order for a person to access the forum. The webmaster has already issued invitations to Executive Board members and all those who posted to the previous forum. Request an invitation if necessary by email to the webmaster (webmaster@afscme3357.org), or by using the Member Registration button on the Apscme 3357 site.)

To access the forum after clicking on the Message Board button on the website:

Look to upper right of window for: Sign In—click

If already have a Google acct (for gmail, e.g.) enter your Google user name and password

If don't already have a Google acct, you'll need to create one:

In the Blogger window that you are in—after clicking Sign In to get to the forum sign-in screen, just click the bright blue Sign In button under the user name/password boxes—you can leave the boxes BLANK.

On the next screen, look to the lower right for “Create an Account now”, and click.
Fill in the Google acct registration to create your account-congratulations!

Then backpage (or use your History button of your browser) to get back the the Apscme 3357 forum screen

Enter your new Google access info and login; you'll see a Dashboard screen showing the blogs you are following (it may only be the one-Apscme 3357 Forum)

From that screen, you can post, edit, comment on other's posts, set settings, or just view the blog, as you wish

To Post: Click on the New Post link in the upper right of your Dashboard Page and then enter your message.

If any questions or problems, let me know
webmaster@afscme3357.org